Domestic tourism to thrive in 2019: CBRE Hotels

The reopening of Hayman Island as an InterContinental will boost competition in North Queensland.

Holidays under the perpetually warm Queensland sun are expected to be a major driving force in Australia's tourism industry in 2019, as the state significantly raises its game to cater to luxury-seekers.

That is one of the key predictions from hotel asset manager and real estate broker CBRE Hotels, which cited the low Australian dollar as a catalyst to driving up domestic tourism as medium and long-haul overseas options become less affordable.
